Can Still Destroy Russia, U.S. Air Chief Declares

CHANUTE AIR FORCE BASE, Illinois, Saturday (Reuter).—The U.S. still retains "the capability to destroy" Russia as a world power despite the Russian claim to have successfully tested an inter-continental ballistic missile, the U.S. Air Force Chief of Staff declared last night.

Gen. Thomas White, in a speech prepared for delivery to two Chambers of Commerce in Illinois, said the Air Force thought that limited war war more likely now than general war. Russia could inlite general war only at terrible risk to themselves," he said.

MILOVAN DJILAR

BELGRADE, Saturday (Reuter). — Mr. Milovan Djilas, former Yugoslav Vice-President who is in jail for hostile propaganda, is to face a new trial on October 4 for writing his anti-Communist book—The New Class," it was confirmed last night by Belgrade Radio.

(Serialization of the book was completed in The Jerusalem Post on September 20 by arrangement with Mesars. Praeger, the U.S. publishers.)

Informed Belgrade sources

Foreign observers believed the new decision would result in a storm of protests from West Germany, which is at present the only German state to have diplomatic relaions with Yugoslavia.

In a broadcast in the Serbo-Croat language Moscow Ra-dio last night declared its' approval of Yugoslav foreign nolicy.

Saudi Arabian diplomats from Iraq Jordan, the Lebanon and Egypt came to Damascus for the talks.

Arab unity was also reported to have been strengthened by talks on Thursday night between Syrian leaders and the Iraqi Prime Minister, Ali Jawdat Ayoubi, who returned to Baghdad yesterday.

A message from King Hussein of Jordan was flown to Damascus on Thursday. The contents were not revealed.

But the Cairo newspaper "Al Ahram" said the message requested Saud to "mediate" to clear up strained relations between Jordan and Syria.

Three Approaches

He said the problem could be approached in three ways:
1) to turn the area into a strict no-man's-land, prohibiting anyone from the zone excepting U.N. personnel, 2) to revert to conditions existing prior to the Armistice Agreement. 3) to reach an agreement that would take into account changes since 1949.

He recommended the third approach as offering "a reasonable basis for a solution."

"The civilian activities of both parties should be kept separate," he suggested. He made the following specific recommendations:

Half a Million Travel

Last night, extra express trains were put into service, covering the Haifa-Tel Aviv line in 80 minutes. Unusual peace and quiet reigned over this usually noisy city during the festival, due not only to the larger exodus but to the closing down of cafes and cessation of traffic.

Synagoguea were fuller than usual, and the shofar sounded quite clearly from many places in a city free of other noises. Even popular gathering places such as Rehov Dizengoff were silent and unlit, and cafe society took refuge indoors.

Chief Rabbi J.L, Unterman told the crowded congregation at the Great Synagogue, which included Maccablah athletes, that "the hour of opportunity had arrived to bring back into the fold those who had moved away from Judalam." The Chief Rabbi stressed that the only way to bring about this rapprochement was through love and understanding, and not through extreme methods.

Diplomats Bring Greetings to Ben-Zvi

The Argentine Ambassador,
Dr. Gregorio Topolevaky, acting doyen of the Diplomatic Corps, on Wednesday, brought the Corps' annual New Year greetings to the President.
Dr. Topolevaky told Mr.
Ben-Zvi that Israel's great achievements in the field of culture engineering, science and research during its nine short years of existence, bear witness to the fact that Israel is a living example of ethics and progress.
In expressing his thanks,
the President said he was especially gratified by the greetings because the international situation continues to be a source of serious concern.

The weather was kind to holiday-makers during the whole of the festival. The beach was fairly full of swimmers and sunbathers, but less crowded than usual. The younger set came to life on Thursday night and the holiday hush was broken after Kassit and other night spots reasserted their dominance of the Dizengoff area together with many parties in private homes.

Before they could get out or turn their jeep around, they were stoned by the enraged settlers. The jeep was seriously damaged, the windscreen smashd and the tires deflated.

Haifa spent three quiet days in pleasant, cool weather. A few drops of rain fell from a temporarily darkened sky yesterday morning. Synagogues were heavily crowded. The beaches were less so, probably because of the absence of buses until yesterday morning. Taxi drivers took advantage of this to charge the highest fares of the outgoing year. In many cases, a sherut trip from Hadar Hacarmel to Ahuza cost 550 pruta, as against In many cases, a sheruf trip from Hadar Hacarmel to Ahuza cost 550 pruta, as against 275 pruta on weekdays.

Many citizens spent the three days out of twn and New Year's eve traffic to Nahariya was heavy.

Arriving at Haifa for the High Holidays were the hassidim of the Rabbi of Wishnitz, Baruch Hager, who attended prayers at the yet uncompleted large synagogue at Ramat Wishnitz.

On New Year's eve some 612 immigrants from North Africa disembarked and went off to development areas before 8 a.m. Port reception, customs and Jewish Agency personnel worked through the night to process the arrivals in time for them to reach their destinations well before nightfall. Equally speedy was the reception of another 40 immigrants from Turkey who came in the as. Marmara.

In conversations on the day before the campaign, Mr. Ben-Gurion said: "As for the Sinai desert I can imagine that there will be forces, such as the Russians, Americans and U.N., which will compel us to withdraw. I fear the U.S. above all. It does not need to send an army, for it has other means."

In the course of his speech, at a Mapai meeting here, Mr. Peres declared that, in autumn 1957, and despite the threats of Radio Moscow and the deteriorating Syrian situation, all the nervousness and unrest lay outside the borders of Israel.

The consciousness of our strength had saved us from wasting our resources in undisciplined rearmament. We have instead based ourselves on an accurately planned build-up of our manpower and armament resources.

Israel would not follow the method of "submarine for submarine," nor rely on the weakness of the Arab sodier nor on the disunity in the Arab world. We would rely on our all-jet Air Force, our strong armoured corps, our highly-mobile infantry, and our re-armed Navy.

Nothing is easier in a poor state like Arkansas than to rouse a temporary rabble of white supporters by talk of racial supremacy and promise of rigid discrimination. It now appears to be an unfortunate fact that Governor Orval Faubus chose this shoddy means of presenting himself as the saviour of his white citizens in an attempt to assure his re-election. He also made the cardinal mistake of calling out the State troopers and actually using these to exclude Negro pupils properly registered at the Central High School, that is, to oppose a ruling made by the Supreme Court.
